A REPORT FROM MERRIAM

Changed Conditions in the Department of the Missouri.

The General Calls Attention to the Reduction of Its Strength—The Work of Teaching and Drilling Recruits Interferes With Theoretical Instruction—Officers' Comments.

The annual report of Brig. Gen. Henry C. Merriam, commanding the Department of the Missouri, was made public today. General Merriam calls attention to the new conditions in the departmental work brought about by the Cuban campaign and organization of regiments for service in the Philippines, remarking that this work was almost as great as organizing new commands, and taxed to the utmost the ingenuity, ability, and strength of the officers in his department. Many recruits were brought into the army not up to the former high standard.

He says: "I consider the department now reduced to its lowest strength compatible with the needs of the country it embraces. During the past year within the limits of the department the regular forces have not been called upon for any emergency. The Apache prisoners of war have been quiet and peaceful and to some extent pursued the avocations of peace."

General Merriam remarks that the work of instructing and drilling recruits interfered greatly with theoretical instruction and the operations of the post. He says: "While I am a thorough believer in the benefits that accrue from the conduct of lectures at posts, yet I believe the system adopted to periods of peace only."

Capt. Grote Hutchison, Acting Judge Advocate and Acting Ordnance Officer of the Department, whose report is transmitted by General Merriam calls particular attention to the recruiting of the army. He says: "It was impossible to prevent worthless characters from creeping into the service, and the records of trials become considerably in excess of those of former years. Considerable difficulty exists in bringing men to trial with promptness, there being at this time, but two posts in the department at which a general court-martial can be called from officers at the post."

He invites attention to the great number of discharges that have been granted by way of favors and remarks: "This results from the impression gained abroad throughout the rank and file of the army that a soldier who is dissatisfied for any cause can secure his discharge provided he is a representative of a Senator. This impression has a demoralizing effect on discipline and creates a feeling of restlessness and discontent among the less favored soldiers."

As chief ordnance officer he reports the ordnance and ordnance stores in good condition and ready for instant use. Regarding the small arm rifle his report says: "The results have equaled the expectations and the ordnance department has surpassed the hopes of the line. This office is yet to learn of a single complaint about the rifle, carbine, or revolver, regarding its effectiveness as a weapon in the hands of trained soldiers. The musketeer powder used in the ammunition was very good, though some officers appear to be of the opinion that similar powder used by the Spanish troops is superior to ours. The consensus of opinion inclines to the belief that the most resulting from the explosion of our powder is rather heavier and fails to dissipate as readily as the powder used by the Spaniards."

THINGS THEATRICAL.

It is not every day—or even every other day—that one may be "in Paradise" for the price of an orchestra chair at the theatre. But this is precisely the opportunity that will be given Washingtonians next week at the Columbia. The "Paradise," unfortunately for those who may have had their hopes elevated by this sentence, is a farce adapted from the French and recently produced at the Bijou, in New York. Many pleasant things have been said of the lines and situations of the piece, the second act of which is described as being one of the funniest imaginable. An excellent company, including Misses Scholman and Richard Golden, will be seen here in the play, for which "Seven-Days-Ahead" Dunn is just now interviewing local critics.

The Age of Inquiry.

The present has been described as pre-eminently the century of inquiry.

The constant and universal question that is echoed from every side, is "Why?" Ask any of your friends why they prefer Van Houten's Cocoa to any other, and one will immediately tell you "it has the highest nutritive value;" another will reply "it is more easily digested and assimilated than other cocoas;" and a third will probably answer "it is perfect in flavor, and rich in healthy stimulating properties."

In reply to the question "Why?" The Lancet says: "Van Houten's Cocoa yields a maximum proportion of the valuable food constituents of the bean."

Why is it the best for children, for mothers, and for family use?

Because it is rich in that digestible Albumen which nourishes the body, and in the Phosphates which build up bones and tissues; because it repairs waste; and also because you can get out of it more strength and nourishment than out of any other.

STUDYING OUR INDIANS

A Prominent Japanese Making a Personal Investigation.

His Purpose Is to Enquire into the Methods of Governing the Redskins So That the Aborigines of His Own Country May Be Improved—Something About Formosa's People.

A Japanese official of great prominence, Yezin Ishiduka, Counselor General of Formosa, and a legal adviser of its cabinet, has arrived in the city. He is studying the United States method of governing the numerous Indian tribes in the West, where he has traveled extensively, and their mental and physical condition. In order that similar measures can be applied to the aborigines of his country for the improvement of their moral state. Mr. Ishiduka will also journey to India, Africa, and other countries in the quest of more knowledge relating to the subject. He is short in stature. He dresses elegantly, and has an attendant. Like the people of his race, he is extremely polite and courteous.

Mr. Ishiduka believes that the United States manner of ruling the Indians is salutary. "They are strong and in perfect health," he said, "and if their mental powers were developed they would make excellent citizens. Some of them are intelligent, I have been told, and are members of the professions, which to me is indicative of the future advancement of the race. People of such determination, fortitude, and bravery cannot become extinct, as these intrinsic qualities will assist and support them. I also noticed that, as a race, they are industrious and honest. The villages of the Indians are clean; there were schools in abundance, and farms. The children appeared to be happy and contented and were dressed in suitable clothing; the women were virtuous and domestic, using articles of civilization—needles, scissors, sewing machines, etc. The Indians are capable of performing many duties. Their blankets are beautiful and their durability is astonishing. The cloth is impervious and can be injured into a garment. They wear various qualities of the blanket show patience and docility, which are evidences of usefulness, and without them the race would be doomed. The Indians, I noticed, no longer mutilate their bodies, a practice of barbarians, and its discontinuance denotes the advent of civilization among them."

"Such a race will never be annihilated; but this is a question which is not comparable with the Indians. They have no farms, schools, or churches. Many of them are idle children, the children are frequently illegitimate; they believe in idolatry; they allow the hair to grow on all parts of the body, and their nails are allowed to grow long; tattooing in various colors is considered a form of beauty and indulged in by them. They often die from excessive eating; they live in strange huts, which prevents the entrance of light, yet not of rain. The lack of civilization, which is almost an utter impossibility. My government, however, will undertake it, successfully, I hope."

Had a Pitt in the Street.

Charles Allen, colored, thirty-five years old, fell in a fit last night in New Jersey avenue, between N and O streets. He was removed to his home, 1143 Madison's court north-west, in the police ambulance.

Must Answer for Stealing Tools.

Detectives Burt and Parham will tomorrow present in court James Cronin and Thomas Collins who are charged with the theft of a trolley charged with the larceny of a trolley valued at $100 from C. E. Wise, of 621 Maryland avenue southeast.

The Tailors' Strike Settled.

The strike inaugurated by the tailors' union, several days ago, was amicably settled. It originated from the refusal of one merchant tailor to employ union tailors, and the local organization, which is composed of about 175 members of the craft, declared a strike.

No Interest on Bonds Asked For.

The Treasury has received very few applications for interest on the bonds, which surprised the officials, who decided to anticipate the payment. The announcement, however, that the interest would be paid in advance has had the effect of increasing the applications for the loan of the bondholders.
